PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

AUGUST 2013 – JULY 2014

COLLEGE ACCESS – FINDING A “GOOD FIT” SCHOOL

- Juniors took a five-week ACT preparation course.
- Scholars went on three college visits to schools representing a variety of campus experiences; this year we visited the University of Iowa, Augustana College, and Lawrence University.
- 20 of our 27 rising senior Scholars participated in summer college programs at schools across the country including Brown University, Loyola University, and the University of Missouri.
- We held eleven workshops on topics including applications and essays, financial aid, preparing for college, budgeting time and finances, health and wellness, and first-semester planning.

COLLEGE SUCCESS – A SUPPORT SYSTEM THROUGH THE COLLEGE YEARS

- Our mentoring program provides a structured, ongoing six-year relationship that supports students through all steps on the path to college graduation.
- Community building events bring Scholars, mentors, families, and staff together to develop the support system that will stay with Scholars through their college years.
 - Initiation Dinner; Holiday Reunion; Northwestern Basketball; Mentor Appreciation Dinner; Day of Community Service

“I look forward to the day that Evanston Scholars visits our campus every year. The students are so engaged, asking great questions and participating fully in everything from a college classroom setting to the campus tour. After they leave, I consistently hear from my colleagues how well-prepared students were for their interviews, and how thoughtful they were in their approach to the entire day. We often hold Evanston Scholars up as a model for how we would like to engage with other groups.”

– Emily Johnson,
Augustana College Associate Director of Admissions

SPOTLIGHT ON SUMMER COLLEGE

Thanks to a grant from the Evanston Community Foundation, in 2014, more Evanston Scholars than ever took advantage of summer pre-college programs. Rising high school seniors enrolled in college level courses taught by professors, lived in dorms, and had their first taste of life as a college student – a “practice run” for the experience awaiting them only one year away. Programs ranged in duration from several days to several weeks.

Brown University in Rhode Island was home to nine Evanston Scholars attending 2014 Summer Pre-College Programs.

“Summer college is at the heart of our transformative programming as Scholars transition from junior to senior year. Whether they are trying out a major at the University of Missouri, meeting fellow students from all over the world at Brown, or figuring out how to get on a plane and travel to Colorado State on their own, these are priceless college-readiness experiences.

The students return confident, knowledgeable, and ready to jump on their fall application process.”

– Nancy Baker, Evanston Scholars Program Director

A PRESIDENTIAL SCHOLAR AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS: ANAMARIA ROSALES

As a high school junior, Anamaria had what on paper was the perfect profile of a college bound student. She worked hard, earned good grades, was on the cross-country team, and volunteered on TeamASAP, where she helped motivate underclassmen to take AP courses. Still, Anamaria did not believe she was truly college bound. No one in her family had ever gone to college, and the thought of it seemed unrealistic – at most she thought she might enroll in a junior college.

When she joined Evanston Scholars, Anamaria’s inherent optimism was unleashed. With a new sense of determination, she went to work turning her high school successes into a future that included a college degree. She took advantage of every opportunity provided by Evanston Scholars: visiting colleges, revising her essays, taking and re-taking the ACT, and forming a close bond with her mentor. The summer before senior year, she traveled to Rhode Island to attend a summer college program at Brown University. By winter break, she had already applied to 11 colleges. Within Evanston Scholars, her optimism was contagious as she became known for wearing Hello Kitty, the color pink, and bows for good luck.

Anamaria is now a freshman with a proposed major in elementary education at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Her hard work and dedication earned her the President’s Award Scholarship – a full-tuition award. She reports, “My transition to college is going a lot better than expected! I’m so glad I chose U. of I.!”

SCHOLAR PROFILES

NIKKI WADE

“Evanston Scholars has helped me so much. I wouldn’t even know about Ball State if it weren’t for the Onsite Admissions Forum in 2012. ES has opened so many doors for me. A loving support system is what every student needs to succeed.

Thank you so much, ES!”

MENTORING

Every young person needs a support system...especially when it comes to succeeding in college. Evanston Scholars mentors provide a critical layer of support to our ambitious students, most of whom will be the first in their families to go to college.

Spanning the full six years of the Evanston Scholars program, the one-to-one mentor relationships provide the guidance Scholars need throughout their college journey. Supported by Evanston Scholars staff, mentors help their students apply for colleges, fill out the FAFSA student aid forms, research scholarship opportunities, and evaluate offers. Once in college, mentors provide additional emotional support to help Scholars adapt to college life and overcome obstacles as they arise.

Catherine Cerra decided to become a mentor after experiencing the challenge of the college application process with her own children. "Getting my daughters through this process...doing all the research, and still having questions. What if you are from a different culture, speak a different language? I just felt I could pass along what I have been through with my kids. It's very rewarding, especially with someone like Mikee, who is so receptive to help."

Juan Villasenor with his mentor, Ian Laing.

After a year and a half of helping his mentee with the college application and selection process, Ian Laing looks forward to a long-term relationship with Juan, now a freshman at Amherst College. "Being a mentor to Juan has been an incredibly fulfilling experience. The best part about being a mentor was witnessing a young person with so much potential begin to grasp the opportunities available to him – all due to his hard work."
